New ConTex-Commentary - issued:	12.10.23
The New ConTex continued its slide this week and with a loss of 2.7%, even at a faster pace than in previous weeks. All size segments are in negative territory but in the range of 2000 to 3000 TEU losses are smaller. This development though could just be due to less recent activity in those sizes than for smaller or larger vessels. Also noticeable is the fact that the difference between the rate indications for the 1100 and 1700 TEU segments between the 6 and 12 months periods has become rather small. One explanation could be that periods with a minimum of 12 months are becoming more of a theoretical figure and are only obtainable anylonger for very special trades or ships. Standard tonnage, both older and modern fuel economic ships, in those sizes can currently only secure very short or flexible business.
